

Ekahau Names New Chairman

Leading European High Tech Entrepreneur Risto Siilasmaa to Lead Ekahau Board

Saratoga, CA - January 18, 2007 - Ekahau Inc., a leading provider of Wi-Fi-based Real Time Location Systems (RTLS), today announced that Risto Siilasmaa, chairman and founder of F-Secure Corporation (HEX:FSC1V), has been named chairman of Ekahau's Board of Directors.

With more than 20 years of IT industry experience, Mr. Siilasmaa is one of the most respected high tech entrepreneurs in Europe. He founded F-Secure, a computer security company, which is considered to be a pioneer and leader in the Internet security market. His achievements at F-Secure include a successful IPO on the Helsinki Stock Exchange. Mr. Siilasmaa also is a private investor and shareholder in Ekahau.

"Risto brings a fresh entrepreneurial spirit to Ekahau," said Antti Korhonen, Ekahau's president and CEO. "He has extensive experience building a successful international IT company. That experience, coupled with his business savvy and wide-ranging relationships with the world's top IT companies, will assist us continuing to develop a competitive corporate strategy."

"Location information in the physical world is of paramount value to all of us. We gain it through our senses and would find life a very different experience if we lost our hearing or eyesight," said Siilasmaa. "Location information is equally valuable in information systems. While this capability is still so new that it is only being used for the most obvious purposes, I am excited by the opportunity to work with the most advanced Wi-Fi based RTLS provider to realize the full potential for this exciting technology."
