

Alien invasion

Monday, 3rd December 2007

Alien Hominid Redialed is a fast-paced 2D side scroller where players must run, jump and shoot their way across the globe in pursuit of the alien's coveted UFO. This series of addictive casual mini games makes the player return over and over to the game to try and complete the various levels. It is an instantly accessible game where the user can jump straight in to play but as with all good games it has that replay value that makes it difficult to master. One of the other key features of the game is the artwork which is completely hand-drawn and hand-animated, with a unique style that has proved extremely popular across the world.

The original prototype has been downloaded over ten million times on newgrounds.com (its birthplace and home), while also being showcased on hundreds of other websites. The mobile version of the game is now available from Telcogames and will be sold through their extensive global distribution.

The game was developed by Tuna Mobile in the UK and is also available on a number of other platforms.

"We are delighted to have the exclusive rights to this game and we are sure our customers worldwide will find it as much fun as we do here at Telcogames" said Jamie Conyngham, CEO.
